

Your Strategic Future is a CD product that post-secondary schools can use as a student assessment program, helping to put their students into the right academic program, going towards the right career path early on. It is a fully-networkable product that students can use to discover the right path for them. It is also a product that advisors and administrators can use to track the progress of individual students, as well as analyze aggregate data of the whole student population. The price for the institutional version is for a one-year license, so it is a repeatable sale. This product provides a profile for student success in school and work. This product will appeal to student services staff who work in academic advising centers, career development centers and enrollment services units. Total seat time for the student is 45 to 60 minutes. The underpinnings of the Strategic Futures software program are based on a theory of personality development formulated by Dr. John Gittinger. The theory provides, perhaps, the most comprehensive organization of personality variables in existence today. The theoretical formulations have a number of special advantages from a practical point of view. The way the theory organizes personality provides a developmental profile of personality maturation over time. The complexities and nuances of human personality are readily described by the theoretical model. The way in which the theory orders data permits specific predictions both of behavior and experience. Hence, the system offers distinctive advantages as compared with other available models. The model captures personality functioning cognitively, emotionally, and socially. It describes the quality of personality change and development over time in response to social and environmental pressures.
